Cadets participate in Water Survival Training

(GROTON, CT) On Monday, cadets from Squadron 1, consisting of Alpha, Bravo, and Charlie Flights visited Survival Systems USA Inc's facility in Groton, Connecticut to participate in a water survival training course. Cadets received instruction on different survival techniques, and utilized emergency equipment such as self-inflating life-vests and a survival raft. Through the training, cadets learned how to handle an emergency situation and practiced teamwork and comradery.

Congratulations!

(NIANTIC, CT) Monday afternoon, the 2014 CTWG Encampment welcomed Army National Guard Colonel Lukowski. Colonel Lukowski talked with cadets about leadership, and answered questions from cadets about his personal leadership experiences, as well as areas they themselves can improve. It was a exiting, and great opportunity, and a rare one at that, for cadets to get leadership advice from an Army Colonel.

Colonel Lukowski sharing valuable lessons on leadership.

After his lesson, Colonel Lukowski served cadets and senior staff dinner from behind the counter of the mess.

We are very thankful for the Colonel giving us his time to speak, and joining us throughout the week.

Cadets give the Colonel their full, undivided attention.
